Chapter 15. Provocative Oppositionality: Pita's Story

You see her in the outdoors section. She is comparing an expensive pair of ski-overalls with a cheaper free-standing halter-top. Her decision completed, she switches price tags and takes the overalls to the checkout counter. You wonder, "Can I help this person, so obviously in pain?" and "Why has no one heard her cry for attention before today?" As you follow her into a dressing room, it hits you: agnosia or failure to recognize or identify objects despite intact sensory function! Flooded with feelings of concern, you curse an irresponsible system in which those most in need of counselling or institutionalization go without. In the dressing room, you place a reassuring hand on her inner thigh. Displaying an overconcern with hidden motivations and special meanings...(as well as) persistent persecutory delusions...(and markedly!) digressive, vague, overelaborative, circumstantial, metaphorical speech...her warm buttocks cupped in your hands...unfortunately, this leaves her room to "act out". Fortunately, the bike shorts have too much "give" for you to be seriously hurt. The helping profession is a dangerous one!
